Who Is Brown's Gas Therapy For?

About 10% of the human body's weight and 63% of its volume is made from hydrogen. We need hydrogen to thrive, which is why this therapy has many potential benefits. It's worth noting that we do get hydrogen from eating because organic compounds contain hydrogen. As we digest and absorb the nutrients of food, we ingest hydrogen.

The body uses hydrogen in many key functions, like oxidation to support proper energy levels. By providing the body with additional hydrogen via Brown's Gas therapy, we can unlock a series of benefits. This treatment has shown to be useful for many chronic diseases and conditions, making it potentially useful for almost anyone.
